WASHINGTON, April 14, 1868.

APNIVERSARY OF THE ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

To-day being the anniversary of the assassination of President Lincoln, all the departments of the government were closed and the fiags on all the public buildings were placed at hair mast. There were no popular demonstrations or processions. The banks of the city were closed; but other places of business remained open.
There is no doubt, as time moves on and the inestimable services of Mr. Lincoline administration of the Executive Services of Mr. Lincoln's administration of the Executive office of the nation become more generally known, we will have another holiday added to our calendar, to show the people's appreciation of the great deeds and sacrifice of this savier of our country, the same as, for years past the lower house of Congress met promptly at noon to-day for the usual amount of Saturday afternoon gab upon dead topics, notwithstanding every one else was disposed to observe the day in memory of the death of the martyr President. After prayers, however, Mr. Garfield rose in his place and moved an adjournment in short and peculiarly fitting terms. Just then the impropriety of talking lightly, while everybody else was sor-rowing, appeared to strike the few members who were present, and they hurriedly left the Capitol. The build-ing was closed during the remainder of the day.

THE ADMISSION OF TENNESSEE. The Reconstruction Committee, it is said, will report next week favorably to the admission of Tennessee. This, it is understood, was agreed upon at a meeting this morning.

THE NEW YORK COLLECTORSHIP. The arrival of Thurlow Weed this morning revived all manner of defunct rumors concerning the Collectorship. Mr. Davies had an interview with the President yester day and again to-night, yet very few persons expect bim to receive the appointment. It was positively asserted to-day by certain interested parties that the position would be filled within twenty-four hours. THE LULL IN SENATORIAL LEGISLATION-A STORM BREWING.

Affairs in the Senate wing of the Capitol have been oppressively quiet all day. The body not being in session was the principal cause, but even the every day work rewere not at their posts in the committee rooms. Quite a number of Senators are out of the city. Some have been absent several days and a week, while a few others left last night and may be expected back on Monday. Among the latter is Senator Cowan, of Pennsylvania. This lull in Senatorial legislation cannot last long, as the irresibles of the radical party are beginning to get rest-and to cast some broad hints of their intentions to renew their partisan operations. It is only the curb placed upon them by their better disciplined party friends that has thus far succeeded in restraining their

RECONSTRUCTION COMMITTEE.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Twibune would do well to be more sure of his pressibes Delies would do well to be more sure of his pressures before he finity contradicts statements of facias sworn to by Herald correspondents. Undoubtedly he was wholly Ignorant of the existence of the remarkable paper rerealed by Mr. T. M. Cook's testimony before the Reconstruction Committee, as was the entire radical element here; therefore the best way to destroy the effects of that testimony was to deny it in tote. But that will not accomplish the purpose. It will be remembered that Mr. Cook swore positively that the document which Mr. Lincoln termed his "Finality as to the South" was handed to Judge Campbell's custody several days, and the statement of the statement was then withdrawn by orders emanating from here . An abstract of it, embracing the main June last, and runs as follows :-

Three things are essential to peace—first, the restora-tion of the national authority throughout all the States, second, no receding by the Executive of the United States on the slavery question from the position assumed hereon in the late annual message to Congress and in-greeding documents; third, no cessation of hostilities, thort of an end of the war and the disbanding of all lorces bostile to the government. All propositions coming from those in hestility to the government, and judgment of the second of the propositions of the consistent with the foregoing, will be respectfully considered and passed upon in a spirit of sincere liberali-y. The Reconstruction Committee would do well to send for Mr. Johnson and the original document. The appearance of the Herald with this testimony created sensation in political circles here. It is considered an unanswerable ovidence that President Johnson is follow-

THE DEERING MASSACRE.

Additional Particulars of the Arrest and Confession of the Murderer.

FUNERAL OF THE VICTIMS.

The Arrest and Confession of the Murderer—He Implicates an Accomplied—His Mevements Since the Commission of the Crime—His History, &c.

[From the Philadelphis Ledger, April 14.]
No more gratifying news could be presented to the reader this morning than that of the arrest of the hired man "Antoine," who, either with his own hands murdered the Deering family or aided in the flendish work. He was captured by officer Dorsey, of the Sixth police district, who, in company with officers Atkinson and Weldon, of the same district, were on patrol duty on Thursday night in West Market street.

The attention of officer Dorsey was attracted to the man by his general appearance and walk, his stoop being particularly noticed. A description of the fugitive had been sent in the course of the afteruoon to the Filbert street station, and communicated to the force by Lieutenant Patton. Impressed with the belief that the murderer was before him, officer Dorsey and to his companions, "That man looks like the German murderer is described to be, and I will see who he is." He then walked after him, and on coming alongside, asked him: "Are you a Gorman?" "No," was the reply; "I am a Freschman." The answer was given in broken English. "Where are you going?" the officer then asked. "In the country," was the reply. "I should like you to take a walk with me," said officer Dorsey, and the man as once assented and went quietly with the policeman down Market street, officers Atkinson and Weldon following. He made no objection to going into the station house, but, when questioned, at first was not disposed to take. Information of the arrest was sent to the Chief of Police, but it was kept from the knowledge of the reporters for several reasons, the principal one being that there might have been an accomplice. The prisoner was searched and two rings were found on his fingers, and a purse in one of his pockets. This was afterwards identified as one that had belonged to Mrs. Deering, Early yesterday morning, the news of the arrest having been pret district, several hundred persons gathered around the station house, most of whom were in a state of great excitement.

Frequent calls were made to bring the prisoner out. Between eight and nine o'clock, Mrs. Dolan having reached the station house, Antoine was conducted by officers Stewart and Young into her presence. As soon as the eyes of the old lady fell upon him she exclaimed, in a voice tremulous with emotion, "Oh, you murderer!" The prisoner hung down his head and was silent. Ans. Dolan then stepped up to him and removed from his neck a "tie" which she said she had herself made for him to please Deoring.

At the same time she remarked that some of the clothes he had on were Deering's. Antoine did not make any remark at that time about the murder, but when the officers had taken him down states and were again searching him, he in reply to a question remarked that he bad killed the boy Cornelius, but did not kill the family of Mr. Deering; that a German, whom he afterwards described, had done it all. About nine o'clock Antoine was removed in a carriage to the Central station, Chief Ruggies and Lieutenant Patton having him in charge. The crowd about the station was very clamorous as the party was leaving, and the prisoner was shown up, much to the gratification of the assemblage. The news of the arrest was widely circuisted after the prisoner's removal from the Fibert street station, and a large crowd soon gathered around the "Central." From ten to eleven o'clock there must have been from four to five thousand persons about Fith and Chestnut streets.

cuiated after the prisoner's removal from the Filbert street station, and a large crowd soon gathered around the "Central." From ten to eleven o'clock there must have been from four to five thousand persons about Fifth and Chestnut streets.

The removal of Antoine to a photograph gallery in the neighborhood led to an intense excitement, that would, no doubt, have resulted in the death of the prisoner had not a large police force accompanied him. Five excellent negatives were taken, and the interest manifested by the public was shown in the great desire to obtain a copy of the picture. An effort was made to follow the prison van as it was being driven off, but the officers resolutely kept the grown back. The description that was published of the prisoner yesterday was a pretty accurate one. Though gnorses and unsociable, he has not a bad countenance. His complexion is light, eyes a bluegray, and his mustache of a yellowish int. He is tall and nuscular, and but for his stoop and down-cast look would make a good appearance. No arrest for murder since the time of Langfelds's capture has made such an excitement about the Mayor's office as that of the murderer of the Deering family. An attempt was made to "ipneh." Langfeldt, and when his trial took place he had to be taken to the court room, from the Central station, through Independence square, the gates being fastened at the time.

As there is much desire to know how far the prisoner's confession goes, we give the following, obtained in interview of the first named efficer took place soon after the prisoner's removal to a cell at the "Central"—Being asked his name, he said it was Antoine Probst, and that he formerly belonged to the Fith Pennsylvania Cavairy, and lost the thumb of his right hand while serving in the army. He confessed to killing the boy, near the haystack, on Saturday morning list; but said that another man had killed the rest of the family.

At about sloven o'clock the prisoner was taken into the Mayor's private office, and after a few minutes dela there despatched by Gaunter, after which he took the baby from the cradle, and, after taking it to the bark, killed it.

At one o'clock, on the same day, Mr. Deering returned to his home, in company with his niece, and at this time the prisoner and Gaunter were in the house. The killing of the two was thus described by the prisoner, after being questioned, as follows:—

Q. How did you manage to kill Mr. Deering? A. I took the horse out, and Gaunter stayed there. When Mr. Deering stepped out of the carriage Gaunter knocked him right down with the axe.

Q. Where was the woman that was with him? Had she got out of the carriage? A. He killed her, also, right there.

The bodies were then removed to the barn by the murderers. Gaunter, according to the prisoner's statement, took Mr. Deering? boots off and put them on his own feet. He also put on Mr. D.'s black cost.

The two murderers returned to the house, and a bundle of things were made up and put in a carried by the mandle of things were made up and put in a carried took that Gannier took thus, and promised to give him two hundred dollars on Monday last, at New Market and Callowhul streets.

The prisoner then went on to say that after he and Gaunter had eaten some bread and butter and ham they left the house, which was about seven octook in the evening, Gaunter leaving first and going in a different direction from that taken by the prisoner. At this point the following questions were propounded:—

Q. Before you garted you agreed to meet again, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you meet? A. No. He told me I could find him in Front street, but he never was there.

The prisoner here described Gaunter to be a man about 32 years old, stout, large shoulders, big face, dark brown hair, and had on a white slouch hat. He said that Gaunter came from Switzerland, and had known him about two years.

Upon examining the prisoner se to the whereabouts of Gaunter, he said that he did not know, but Gaunter told him that he (the prisoner) could find him any day in the sawa from the city

Upon examining the prisoner se to the whereabouts of Gaunter, he said that he did not know; but Gaunter told him that he (the prisoner) could find him any day in Front street.

The prisoner, when asked whether he cared to get away from the city, replied that he did not care, and he guessed it would be all right when they caught him. He was then questioned again as to the killing as follows:—

Q. The man Gaunter, you say, killed all but the boy? A. Yes; he killed Mrs. Deering and the four children, and then Mr. Deering, when he came home, and the woman with him.

Q. Did you help him to kill any of them? A. No. Q. You had two axes? A. Yes.

Q. After their heads were broken, who chopped their threats? A. He cut them all down; he knocked them all down.

Q. Did you cut the threat of the boy you killed with the hatcheft? A. Yes.

The prisoner also stated at this point that Gaunter took the baby out of the oradle, and also said that they were all killed when he got to the house.

The prisoner stated that his parents are still living in Germany, and that he heard from them about two menths ago. His father is a carpenter, and he (the prisoner) learned the trade with him.

Antone Probst, the murderer, reached the county prison between eleven and twelve o'clock yesterday, and was at once placed in the cell on the second certified, convict stide, recently occupied by Berger, the murderer of Miss Watt. He showed no sign of emotion, spoke freely to such of the officers of the prison, who conversed with him in the German language, he teld the story of the murders much as he had narrated it to the Mayor, but entered more into detail, describing how they were done. To thus gentleman he said he was from Badee, where his father and nother and brother and sisters reside. It was during this conversation that he, for the first time, showed anything like sensibility, and it was when he was asked what his parents would think whon they heard of the commission of the dreadful crime to be the dreadful crime to be the dreadful crime to be ner as the others were. "" He paused for a moment, and then answered, "He tole me how to do it!" Such as then answer, probably the best he so "d give, is calculated to answer, probably the best he so "no accomplice. The increase the doubt of his having has "noon he had last time Probst was visited yearday sile."

The police made an arrest yesterday silerssoon of a man answering the description given by Probst, and cook him to the county prison, where he was confronted wish him to the county prison, where he was confronted with Antoine, who at once said he was not the person. The a Bible in his hand, and appeared to be reading.

The police made an arrest yesterday sfirsteon of a man answering the description given by Probet, an't took him to the county prison, where he was not the person. Th'e man was then discharged. While Chief Franklin was at the prison on this business he had a further convergention with the prisoner, and asked him more particularly as to the manner of the killing of Mr. Deering and his niece, and as it differs somewhat from that given before the Mayor, we add it to the above:

Q. What were you doing when Gaunter killed Deering?

A I was holding the horse; Gaunter knocked Duering down with the axe as soon as he got from the carriage, and his niece started to run, when he caught up with her, and, striking her alongside of the head with the sac, knocked her down; he then cut the throats of both.

Q. How did the woman's bonnet get in the house? A I took it off her head and carried it in.

The bonnet was examined, an old-fashioned one, which came well over the face, and no marks of blood could be found upon it or any indication that it had been on the ground.

The prisoner visited the saloon of Mr. Lickfeld, 446 New Market street, on Sunday last, and again on Monday, where he slept. He left on that day and returned again on Wednesday. On Thursday he roturned again and remained until nearly seven o'clock, when he left in company with a man whom the police are now endeavoring to find. Probet, while in Mr. Lickfeld's asloon on Trursday, read the account of the murder as given in the German Demokrat, but nothing in his conduct led any one to suppose that he had anything to do with it.

The Funeral of the Victims.

[From the Philadelphia Telegraph, April 14]

The funeral of the victims of the late atrocious murder took place this afternoon, from the residence of Mr. Simon Gartland, the undertaker, in Thirteenth street, above Chestnut. At an early hour a large concourse of persons commenced to assemble in front of the house where the mangled corpses were laid out. Among the multipade thus assembled were many who gave full expression to their views in reference to the marder of the Deering family and others immediately assembled with them, and universal feeling among all present was that the crime thus constructed to the selection of the selection of the selection among and present was that the crime thus committed should be speedily atoned for by the guilty parties. Various modes of punishment were suggested, according to the view taken of the sad event by the parties in question. The crowd, becoming much augmented, pushed their way up the steps leading to the house by unauthorized persons, a posse of police was stationed on the steps, and all who claimed the right of admission were required to present a cross to the familiasion were required to present a ticket, showing their claim to be genuine.

The bodies were laid out in peat shrouds and placed in for admission. In order to prevent access to the house by unauthorized persons, a posse of police was stationed on the steps, and all who claimed the right of admission were required to present a ticket, showing their claim to be gonoine.

The bodies were laid out in neat shrouds and placed in coffins, having on their ide the mames of the deceased in order, with silver plates to designate them, as follows: Cornelius Carey, died April 7, 1866, aged 17 years. Elizabeth Dolan, died April 7, 1866, aged 25 years. Rmitry beering, died April 7, 1866, aged 4 years. Thomas Deering, died April 7, 1866, aged 4 years. Thomas Deering, died April 7, 1866, aged 4 years. John Deering, died April 7, 1866, aged 8 years. John Deering, died April 7, 1866, aged 8 years. At the hour of ten oligick the gate leading to Mr. Gartland's house was thrown open, and all having tickets of admission were permitted to anter, for the purpose of viewing the bodies as they lay in their coffins. The scene was most selema and affecting. Old and young, as they witnessed the mutilated remains, gave vent to their feelings of sympathy by suppressed sobs, which at times became almost audible, in spite of their endeavors to suppressection. As the crowd passed in front of the different bodies they were required to leave the premises by the front door, in order to make room for these who followed them. At the head of the coffins were a number of caudies burning, seconding to the usage of the Catholic Church. A large chandeller was also lift, in order to allow all present to have a fair view of the bodies. At the hour appointed for the solemn procession to move the vehicles containing the corpsers and a number of policemen were arranged in front of the building in the following order:—

Police in ambulance of the Good Will Fire Company. Hearse containing remains of the four children—Emily Deering, Anna Deering, Thomas Decring and John Beering.

Henry Cardiner, a nomber of the Twelfth United States infantry, and formerly a resident of Cieve-land, Ghio, where he has a father, easter and two brothers living at present, was on Wednesday convicted of murilor in the first degree, and to-day was rentenced by Judge Balcom to be hing on Friday, the first day of June next. Gardiner's regiment was on duty at this military post in 1864, and while here he became acquainted with an old man skrythree years of age, named Amasa Mulock. On the 29th of December, 1864, the two started out together, and Mulock was never seen sgain alive. On the 19th of Murch, 1865, the body was found in a piece of woods northwest of the city. The skull was instered and broken to pieces with a gin, the broken pieces of which lay by the body. Suspicion fell upon Gardiner, and he was arrested, and, by a true chale of evidence, curvicted of having introduced the old man fer the purpose of obtaining a sum of money, supposed to the three or four hundred dollars and two sile wasteles, which Mulock had with him.
